

(b)(6)

U.S. Department of Homeland Security
U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services
Administrative Appeals Office (AAO)
20 Massachusetts Ave., N.W., MS 2090
Washington, DC 20529-2090

U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services

Date: MAY 08 2013

Office: TEXAS SERVICE CENTER

FILE: [REDACTED]

IN RE: Petitioner: [REDACTED]
Beneficiary: [REDACTED]

PETITION: Immigrant Petition for Alien Worker as a Member of the Professions Holding an Advanced Degree or an Alien of Exceptional Ability Pursuant to Section 203(b)(2) of the Immigration and Nationality Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(2)

ON BEHALF OF PETITIONER:

INSTRUCTIONS:

Enclosed please find the decision of the Administrative Appeals Office in your case. All of the documents related to this matter have been returned to the office that originally decided your case. Please be advised that any further inquiry that you might have concerning your case must be made to that office.

If you believe the AAO inappropriately applied the law in reaching its decision, or you have additional information that you wish to have considered, you may file a motion to reconsider or a motion to reopen in accordance with the instructions on Form I-290B, Notice of Appeal or Motion, with a fee of $630. The specific requirements for filing such a motion can be found at 8 C.F.R. § 103.5. Do not file any motion directly with the AAO. Please be aware that 8 C.F.R. § 103.5(a)(1)(i) requires any motion to be filed within 30 days of the decision that the motion seeks to reconsider or reopen.

Thank you,

Elizabeth McCormick

Ron Rosenberg
Acting Chief, Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The preference visa petition was denied by the Director, Texas Service Center, and is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The petitioner claims to be a software and IT services business. It seeks to employ the beneficiary permanently in the United States as a project leader. As required by statute, ETA Form 9089, Application for Permanent Employment Certification, approved by the United States Department of Labor (DOL), accompanied the petition. The director determined that the petitioner had not established that it had the continuing ability to pay the beneficiary the proffered wage beginning on the priority date of the visa petition and denied the petition accordingly.

The record shows that the appeal is properly filed, timely and makes a specific allegation of error in law or fact. The procedural history in this case is documented by the record and incorporated into the decision. Further elaboration of the procedural history will be made only as necessary.

As set forth in the director's October 13, 2009 denial, the issue in this case is whether the petitioner has the ability to pay the proffered wage as of the priority date and continuing until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence.

In pertinent part, section 203(b)(2) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(2), provides immigrant classification to members of the professions holding advanced degrees or their equivalent and whose services are sought by an employer in the United States. An advanced degree is a United States academic or professional degree or a foreign equivalent degree above the baccalaureate level. 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(k)(2). The regulation further states: "A United States baccalaureate degree or a foreign equivalent degree followed by at least five years of progressive experience in the specialty shall be considered the equivalent of a master's degree. If a doctoral degree is customarily required by the specialty, the alien must have a United States doctorate or a foreign equivalent degree." Id.

Section 203(b)(2) of the Act also includes aliens "who because of their exceptional ability in the sciences, arts or business, will substantially benefit prospectively the national economy, cultural or educational interests, or welfare of the United States." The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(k)(2) defines "exceptional ability" as "a degree of expertise significantly above that ordinarily encountered."

The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2) states in pertinent part:

Ability of prospective employer to pay wage. Any petition filed by or for an employment-based immigrant which requires an offer of employment must be accompanied by evidence that the prospective United States employer has the ability to pay the proffered wage. The petitioner must demonstrate this ability at the time the priority date is established and continuing until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence. Evidence of this ability shall be either in the form of copies of annual reports, federal tax returns, or audited financial statements.

The petitioner must demonstrate the continuing ability to pay the proffered wage beginning on the priority date, which is the date the ETA Form 9089 was accepted for processing by any office within the employment system of the DOL. See 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(d). The petitioner must also demonstrate that, on the priority date, the beneficiary had the qualifications stated on its ETA Form 9089 as certified by the DOL and submitted with the instant petition. Matter of Wing's Tea House, 16 I&N Dec. 158 (Acting Reg'l Comm'r 1977).

Here, the ETA Form 9089 was accepted on October 22, 2008. The proffered wage as stated on the ETA Form 9089 is $45.69 per hour based upon a 40 hour work week ($95,035.20 per year). The ETA Form 9089 states that the position requires a bachelor's degree in computer science or engineering or in a related field and 60 months (5 years) of progressive work experience as a project leader. A foreign educational equivalent is also acceptable.

The AAO conducts appellate review on a de novo basis. See Soltane v. DOJ, 381 F.3d 143, 145 (3d Cir. 2004). The AAO considers all pertinent evidence in the record, including new evidence properly submitted upon appeal.<sup>1</sup>

The evidence in the record of proceeding shows that the petitioner is structured as an S corporation. On the petition, the petitioner claimed to have been established in 1995, and that it currently employs 69 workers. According to the tax returns in the record, the petitioner's fiscal year is based on a calendar year. On the ETA Form 9089, signed by the beneficiary on June 18, 2009, the beneficiary claims to have been employed by the petitioner from March 2004 to November 2006..

The petitioner must establish that its job offer to the beneficiary is a realistic one. Because the filing of an ETA Form 9089 establishes a priority date for any immigrant petition later based on the ETA Form 9089, the petitioner must establish that the job offer was realistic as of the priority date and that the offer remained realistic for each year thereafter, until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence. The petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage is an essential element in evaluating whether a job offer is realistic. See Matter of Great Wall, 16 I&N Dec. 142 (Acting Reg. Comm. 1977); see also 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2). In evaluating whether a job offer is realistic, United States Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) requires the petitioner to demonstrate financial resources sufficient to pay the beneficiary's proffered wages, although the totality of the circumstances affecting the petitioning business will be considered if the evidence warrants such consideration. See Matter of Sonegawa, 12 I&N Dec. 612 (Reg. Comm. 1967).

In determining the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage during a given period, USCIS will first examine whether the petitioner employed and paid the beneficiary during that period. If the petitioner establishes by documentary evidence that it employed the beneficiary at a salary equal to or greater than the proffered wage, the evidence will be considered prima facie proof of the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage. The record of proceeding does not contain any evidence of wages paid by the petitioner to the beneficiary. Although the petitioner submitted copies of IRS Forms W-2 and pay stubs issued by [REDACTED] to the beneficiary, this evidence cannot be used to establish the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage in the instant matter.

---

<sup>1</sup> The submission of additional evidence on appeal is allowed by the instructions to the Form I-290B, which are incorporated into the regulations at 8 C.F.R. § 103.2(a)(1).

If, as in this case, the petitioner does not establish that it employed and paid the beneficiary an amount at least equal to the proffered wage during that period, USCIS will next examine the net income figure reflected on the petitioner's federal income tax return, without consideration of depreciation or other expenses. River Street Donuts, LLC v. Napolitano, 558 F.3d 111 (1st Cir. 2009); Taco Especial v. Napolitano, 696 F. Supp. 2d 873 (E.D. Mich. 2010), aff'd, No. 10-1517 (6th Cir. filed Nov. 10, 2011). Reliance on federal income tax returns as a basis for determining a petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage is well established by judicial precedent. Elatos Restaurant Corp. v. Sava, 632 F. Supp. 1049, 1054 (S.D.N.Y. 1986) (citing Tongatapu Woodcraft Hawaii, Ltd. v. Feldman, 736 F.2d 1305 (9th Cir. 1984)); see also Chi-Feng Chang v. Thornburgh, 719 F. Supp. 532 (N.D. Texas 1989); K.C.P. Food Co., Inc. v. Sava, 623 F. Supp. 1080 (S.D.N.Y. 1985); Ubeda v. Palmer, 539 F. Supp. 647 (N.D. Ill. 1982), aff'd, 703 F.2d 571 (7th Cir. 1983). Reliance on the petitioner's gross receipts and wage expense is misplaced. Showing that the petitioner's gross receipts exceeded the proffered wage is insufficient. Similarly showing that the petitioner paid wages in excess of the proffered wage is insufficient.

In K.C.P. Food Co., Inc. v. Sava, 623 F. Supp. at 1084, the court held that the Immigration and Naturalization Service, now USCIS, had properly relied on the petitioner's net income figure, as stated on the petitioner's corporate income tax returns, rather than the petitioner's gross income. The court specifically rejected the argument that USCIS should have considered income before expenses were paid rather than net income. See Taco Especial v. Napolitano, 696 F. Supp. 2d at 881 (gross profits overstate an employer's ability to pay because it ignores other necessary expenses).

With respect to depreciation, the court in River Street Donuts noted:

The AAO recognized that a depreciation deduction is a systematic allocation of the cost of a tangible long-term asset and does not represent a specific cash expenditure during the year claimed. Furthermore, the AAO indicated that the allocation of the depreciation of a long-term asset could be spread out over the years or concentrated into a few depending on the petitioner's choice of accounting and depreciation methods. Nonetheless, the AAO explained that depreciation represents an actual cost of doing business, which could represent either the diminution in value of buildings and equipment or the accumulation of funds necessary to replace perishable equipment and buildings. Accordingly, the AAO stressed that even though amounts deducted for depreciation do not represent current use of cash, neither does it represent amounts available to pay wages.

We find that the AAO has a rational explanation for its policy of not adding depreciation back to net income. Namely, that the amount spent on a long term tangible asset is a "real" expense.

River Street Donuts at 118. “[USCIS] and judicial precedent support the use of tax returns and the net income figures in determining petitioner’s ability to pay. Plaintiffs’ argument that these figures should be revised by the court by adding back depreciation is without support.” Chi-Feng Chang at 537 (emphasis added).

The petitioner submitted a combined audited financial statement in support of its ability to pay the proffered wage in 2008.<sup>2</sup> The proffered wage is $95,035.20. The petitioner’s audited financial statement demonstrates its net income as shown in the table below:<sup>3</sup>

- In 2008, the audited financial statement stated a net revenue (loss) of ($417,865.00).

Therefore, for the year 2008, the petitioner did not have sufficient net revenues to pay the proffered wage.<sup>4</sup>

As an alternate means of determining the petitioner’s ability to pay the proffered wage, USCIS may review the petitioner’s net current assets. Net current assets are the difference between the petitioner’s current assets and current liabilities.<sup>5</sup> The petitioner’s year-end current assets and year-end current liabilities are shown on the audited financial statement. If the total of a corporation’s end-of-year net current assets and the wages paid to the beneficiary (if any) are equal to or greater than the proffered wage, the petitioner is expected to be able to pay the proffered wage using those <sup>2</sup> The AAO will consider the assets of the petitioner individually as listed on the combined financial statement. The petitioner is a United States corporation separate and distinct from the related, but different, foreign corporation on the combined audited statement. The petitioner’s tax forms from prior years do not indicate that the two companies’ income is consolidated for tax purposes. Because a corporation is a separate and distinct legal entity from its owners and shareholders, the assets of its shareholders or of other enterprises or corporations cannot be considered in determining the petitioning corporation’s ability to pay the proffered wage. See Matter of Aphrodite Investments, Ltd., 17 I&N Dec. 530 (Comm’r 1980). In a similar case, the court stated, “nothing in the governing regulation, 8 C.F.R. § 204.5, permits [USCIS] to consider the financial resources of individuals or entities who have no legal obligation to pay the wage.” See Sitar v. Ashcroft, 2003 WL 22203713 (D.Mass. Sept. 18, 2003).

---

<sup>3</sup> In this matter, the petitioner’s net income is reflected on the audited financial statement as total operating expenses subtracted from the total revenues.

<sup>4</sup> Even were the AAO to consider the combined net revenue, the petitioner would have a loss of ($377,428.00) and would not have sufficient net income to pay the proffered wage.

<sup>5</sup> According to Barron’s Dictionary of Accounting Terms 117 (3rd ed. 2000), “current assets” consist of items having (in most cases) a life of one year or less, such as cash, marketable securities, inventory and prepaid expenses. “Current liabilities” are obligations payable (in most cases) within one year, such accounts payable, short-term notes payable, and accrued expenses (such as taxes and salaries). Id. at 118.

net current assets.<sup>6</sup> The financial statement demonstrates the petitioner's net current assets as shown in the table below:

- In 2008, the audited financial statement stated net current assets (liabilities) of ($1,225,858.00).<sup>7</sup>

Therefore, from the date the ETA Form 9089 was accepted for processing by the DOL, the petitioner had not established that it had the continuing ability to pay the beneficiary the proffered wage through an examination of wages paid to the beneficiary, or its net income or net current assets.

On appeal, counsel asserts that the director's decision is based on an incorrect interpretation of the petitioner's financial records, and that the petitioner has provided evidence sufficient to show that it has the ability to pay the proffered wage.

Counsel asserts that the petitioner's line of credit which is listed in the current liabilities section of the financial statement for 2008 should more accurately be listed as a long-term liability. The AAO disagrees. The line of credit of [REDACTED] is collateralized by a first security interest in certain accounts receivable, which are considered as current assets. Thus, the liability secured by these assets is also current liabilities. The financial statements are audited by professionals who make the decision how to characterize such assets. The petitioner has not provided a retraction or amended audited statement from the CPA firm indicating that the line of credit is a long-term liability. Going on record without supporting documentary evidence is not sufficient for purposes of meeting the burden of proof in these proceedings. Matter of Soffici, 22 I&N Dec. 158, 165 (Comm'r 1998) (citing Matter of Treasure Craft of California, 14 I&N Dec. 190 (Reg'l Comm'r 1972)).

Counsel also implies that the unused line of credit may be considered to establish the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage. Although counsel cites to the decision in Full Gospel Portland Church v. Thornburgh, 730 F. Supp. 441 (D.D.C. 1988), this decision is not binding here. Although the AAO may consider the reasoning of the decision, the AAO is not bound to follow the published decision of a United States district court in cases arising within the same district. See Matter of K-S-, 20 I&N Dec. 715 (BIA 1993). Further, the decision in Full Gospel is distinguishable from the instant case. The court in Full Gospel ruled that USCIS should consider the pledges of parishioners in determining a church's ability to pay the wages of a beneficiary. Here, counsel's assertion is that USCIS should treat its remaining line of credit, as evidence of its ability to pay, even though a line of credit creates an expense and a debt, whereas a parishioner's pledge is a promise to give money to <sup>6</sup> In this matter, the petitioner's net current assets are reflected on the audited financial statement as the difference between current assets and current liabilities.

---

<sup>7</sup> Even were the AAO to consider the combined net current assets (liabilities), the net current liabilities are ($915,415.00). As such, the petitioner would not have the ability to pay the proffered wage out of the net current assets.

a church. In the latter situation, a pledge does not create a corresponding debt and liability, as does the line of credit.

Since the line of credit is a “commitment to loan” and not an existent loan, the petitioner has not established that the unused funds from the line of credit are available at the time of filing the petition. As noted above, a petitioner must establish eligibility at the time of filing; a petition cannot be approved at a future date after the petitioner becomes eligible under a new set of facts. See Matter of Katigbak, 14 I&N Dec. 45, 49 (Comm'r 1971). Moreover, the petitioner’s existent loans will be reflected in the balance sheet provided in the tax return or audited financial statement and will be fully considered in the evaluation of the petitioner’s net current assets. Comparable to the limit on a credit card, the line of credit cannot be treated as cash or as a cash asset. However, if the petitioner wishes to rely on a line of credit as evidence of ability to pay, the petitioner must submit documentary evidence, such as a detailed business plan and audited cash flow statements, to demonstrate that the line of credit will augment and not weaken its overall financial position. Finally, USCIS will give less weight to loans and debt as a means of paying salary since the debts will increase the petitioner’s liabilities and will not improve its overall financial position. Although lines of credit and debt are an integral part of any business operation, USCIS must evaluate the overall financial position of a petitioner to determine whether the employer is making a realistic job offer and has the overall financial ability to satisfy the proffered wage. See Matter of Great Wall, 16 I&N Dec. 142 (Acting Reg'l Comm'r 1977).

Counsel asserts that the beneficiary will replace one of the petitioner’s other workers who was employed in the same position as the beneficiary would have been if hired by the petitioner in 2008. Counsel further states that the wages of the temporary replacement employee from June 2008 was $33,880.00 (a prorated salary of $14,117.00) for the six month period in 2008, and that therefore, the petitioner need only to demonstrate its ability to pay the proffered wage for approximately two and a half months or $19,799.00. The priority date in the instant matter is October 22, 2008. The record does not, however, verify the other worker’s full-time employment, or provide evidence that the petitioner has replaced or will replace the other worker with the beneficiary. In general, wages already paid to others are not available to prove the ability to pay the wage proffered to the beneficiary at the priority date of the petition and continuing to the present. Moreover, there is no evidence that the position of the other worker involves the same duties as those set forth in the ETA Form 9089.<sup>8</sup> The petitioner has not documented the position, duty, and termination of the other worker. If that employee performed other kinds of work, then the beneficiary could not have replaced him or her. For this additional reason, the documents submitted in reference to the other worker cannot be considered in determining the petitioner’s ability to pay the proffered wage to the beneficiary.

---

<sup>8</sup> The petitioner submitted a copy of the other worker’s Form W-2 for 2008 and an employment agreement dated June 24, 2008 in which the other worker agreed to an hourly rate of pay of $35.00 as of June 24, 2008. It is noted that the salary difference; $35.00 per hour paid to the other worker versus $45.00 an hour to be paid by the petitioner to the beneficiary, indicates that the position and the job duties are not the same as is indicated on the ETA Form 9089.

Counsel also requests that USCIS prorate the proffered wage for the beneficiary for the portion of the year that occurred after the priority date. Contrary to counsel's claim, USCIS will not, however, consider 12 months of income towards an ability to pay a lesser period of the proffered wage any more than we would consider 24 months of income towards paying the annual proffered wage. While USCIS will prorate the proffered wage if the record contains evidence of net income or payment of the beneficiary's wages specifically covering the portion of the year that occurred after the priority date (and only that period), such as monthly income statements or pay stubs, the petitioner has not submitted such evidence. The record shows, and the petitioner admits under penalty of perjury, that the beneficiary was not employed by the petitioner but was in fact employed by [REDACTED] in 2008. Therefore, there are no monthly income statements or pay stubs bearing the beneficiary's name as employee of the petitioner sufficient to consider prorating wages in 2008.

Counsel infers that the petitioner's bank balances should be taken into consideration in determining its ability to pay the proffered wage. The petitioner submitted as evidence a copy of its bank statements for the period from October 2008 through August 2009. The petitioner's reliance on the balances in its bank account is misplaced. First, bank statements are not among the three types of evidence, enumerated in 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2), required to illustrate a petitioner's ability to pay a proffered wage. While this regulation allows additional material "in appropriate cases," the petitioner in this case has not demonstrated why the documentation specified at 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2) is inapplicable or otherwise paints an inaccurate financial picture of the petitioner. Second, bank statements show the amount in an account on a given date, and cannot show the sustainable ability to pay a proffered wage. Third, no evidence was submitted to demonstrate that the funds reported on the bank statements somehow reflect additional available funds that were not reflected on the tax returns. Therefore, the petitioner cannot establish an ability to pay the proffered wage through these bank statements.

Counsel's assertions and the evidence presented on appeal do not outweigh the evidence of record that demonstrates that the petitioner could not pay the proffered wage from the day the ETA Form 9089 was accepted for processing by the DOL. Without documentary evidence to support the claim, the assertions of counsel will not satisfy the petitioner's burden of proof. The assertions of counsel do not constitute evidence. Matter of Obaigbena, 19 I&N Dec. 533, 534 (BIA 1988); Matter Of Laureano, 19 I&N Dec. 1 (BIA 1983); Matter of Ramirez-Sanchez, 17 I&N Dec. 503, 506 (BIA 1980).

USCIS may consider the overall magnitude of the petitioner's business activities in its determination of the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage. See Matter of Sonegawa, 12 I&N Dec. 612. The petitioning entity in Sonegawa had been in business for over 11 years and routinely earned a gross annual income of about $100,000. During the year in which the petition was filed in that case, the petitioner changed business locations and paid rent on both the old and new locations for five months. There were large moving costs and also a period of time when the petitioner was unable to do regular business. The Regional Commissioner determined that the petitioner's prospects for a resumption of successful business operations were well established. The petitioner was a fashion designer whose work had been featured in Time and Look magazines. Her clients included Miss Universe, movie actresses, and society matrons. The petitioner's clients had been included in the lists of the best-dressed California women. The petitioner lectured on fashion design at design and fashion shows throughout the United States and at colleges and universities in California. The Regional Commissioner's determination in Sonegawa was based in part on the petitioner's sound business reputation and outstanding reputation as a couturiere. As in Sonegawa, USCIS may, at its discretion, consider evidence relevant to the petitioner's financial ability that falls outside of a petitioner's net income and net current assets. USCIS may consider such factors as the number of years the petitioner has been doing business, the established historical growth of the petitioner's business, the overall number of employees, the occurrence of any uncharacteristic business expenditures or losses, the petitioner's reputation within its industry, whether the beneficiary is replacing a former employee or an outsourced service, or any other evidence that USCIS deems relevant to the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage.

Counsel asserts that the petitioner has been in business since 1995 and that the petitioner anticipates a steady increase in its income and receipts, a reasonable expectation of future financial gain with its continued expansion of its workforce. Counsel further states that the petitioner's increase in revenue nearly doubling from $7,022,358.00 in gross receipts in 2004 to $13,497,992.00 in 2007 coupled with a corresponding growth in employees and salary growing from $583,177.00 in salaries paid in 2004 to $1,168,300.00 in 2007, is evidence of its ability to pay the proffered wage. Income realized prior to the priority date and future projections of increased income are insufficient to demonstrate the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage in 2008. While the petitioner has large gross receipts in 2008, its liabilities are also significant as measured by the negative net income and current liabilities outlined above.

Although counsel claims that the petitioner's gross receipts are substantial and have increased over time, reliance on the petitioner's gross receipts to establish the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage is misplaced. As noted above, USCIS properly relies on the petitioner's net income, as stated on the petitioner's corporate tax returns. River Street Donuts, LLC v. Napolitano, 558 F.3d at 116; K.C.P. Food Co., Inc. v. Sava, 623 F. Supp. at 1084. In general, wages already paid to others are not available to prove the ability to pay the wage proffered to the beneficiary at the priority date of the petition and continuing to the present. In addition, reliance on the petitioner's future receipts is misplaced. Showing that the petitioner's gross receipts are expected to exceed the proffered wage is insufficient. A petitioner must establish its ability to pay from the date of the priority date, which in this case is May 3, 2011. A petition cannot be approved at a future date after eligibility is established under a new set of facts. Matter of Katigbak, 14 I&N Dec. 45-49 (Comm. 1971). Finally, the petitioner has not shown through objective, audited financial documents that the anticipated increase in income will be significant enough to allow it to pay the beneficiary's wage. Against the projection of future earnings, Matter of Great Wall, 16 I&N Dec. 142, 144-145 (Acting Reg'l Comm'r 1977), states:

I do not feel, nor do I believe the Congress intended, that the petitioner, who admittedly could not pay the offered wage at the time the petition was filed, should subsequently become eligible to have the petition approved under a new set of facts hinged upon probability and projections, even beyond the information presented on appeal.

Counsel asserts on appeal that the petitioner's business was negatively impacted by the 2008 financial crisis in the United States. Contrary to counsel's claim, the record of proceeding contains no evidence specifically connecting the petitioner's business decline to an economic or financial crisis in 2008. A broad statement by counsel that, because of the nature of the petitioner's industry, its business was negatively impacted by the 2008 financial crisis in the United States does not by itself demonstrate the petitioner's continuing ability to pay the proffered wage beginning on the priority date. Rather, such a general statement merely suggests, without supporting evidence, that the petitioner's financial status might have appeared stronger had it not been for the event noted above. Going on record without supporting documentary evidence is not sufficient for purposes of meeting the burden of proof in these proceedings. Matter of Soffici, 22 I&N Dec. 158, 165 (Comm. 1998) (citing Matter of Treasure Craft of California, 14 I&N Dec. 190 (Reg. Comm. 1972)). Without documentary evidence to support the claim, the assertions of counsel will not satisfy the petitioner's burden of proof. Matter of Obaigbena, supra.; Matter of Ramirez-Sanchez, 17 I&N Dec. 503, 506 (BIA 1980).

In this matter, the totality of the circumstances does not establish that the petitioner had or has the ability to pay the proffered wage in the relevant years. There are no facts paralleling those found in Sonegawa that are present in the instant matter to a degree sufficient to establish that the petitioner had the ability to pay the proffered wage. The petitioner has failed to demonstrate the occurrence of any uncharacteristic business expenditures or losses in 2008 that directly affected its ability to pay the proffered wage. Overall, the record is not persuasive in establishing that the job offer is realistic beginning on the priority date and continuing until the beneficiary obtains permanent residence.

Accordingly, the evidence submitted does not establish that the petitioner had the continuing ability to pay the proffered wage beginning on the priority date.

The burden of proof in these proceedings rests solely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. The petitioner has not met that burden.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.